The spirit of the Sincere Pumpkin Patch is captured here by photographer Marie Van Auken. Who knows, you might even be able to make out the Great Pumpkin lurking behind the pumpkin wagon . . . or peeking around the shoulder of the scarecrow . . . or he might even visit your house under the guise of a UNICEF volunteer selling Christmas Cards on All Saints Eve. As you know, UNICEF Greeting Cards are designed by professional artists and are sold to help alleviate the suffering of two thirds of the world's children. So be on watch October 31, you might have the opportunity to buy a Christmas Card from the Great Pumpkin himself.

Cannery Row Sculptor Fire Victims Aided

Seven sculptors who lost their works in the recent fire which gutted the San Xavier Cannery will benefit from an auction and entertainment planned for the afternoon of October 29 in front of the Warehouse on Cannery Row.

The Gordon Newell sculpture center adjoining the Cannery lost work valued in excess of $35,000. High temperatures melted and cold water exploded stone work.

Artists throughout the Peninsula will be asked to donate paintings to be auctioned. Any sort of item that can be auctioned will be welcomed.

WEATHER

Mostly sunny with some drifts of fog. Temperature highs near 72, lows near 47. 10% chance of rain after the weekend.

Planners Hear Center Rezoning Arguments

Thirty-three Carmel residents sat in the City Hall chambers eagerly awaiting their turn to resist or support the Planning Commission's plan to re-zone Sunset Center into an A-2 district.

Commission Chairman Dorothy von Meier opened the public hearings by basing her remarks around the code under which Sunset Center was purchased and notified the awaiting audience that "now we are in the process of zoning it to its proper use," which by the way, will be neither commercial or residential something in between.

For the most part, those who resisted the re-zoning plan were, according to Art-miral C. W. Fisher, misled that Sunset would become commercially zoned. Commissioner von Meier said, "We are not re-zoning Sunset Commercial . . . we must merely get it out of the R-1 district, otherwise it will have to become a single family residence."

Other citizens expressed their objection to the possibility of having a restaurant established at Sunset . . . still others protested that if re-zoned it would pave the way to more commercial zoning.

Those persons living on property surrounding Sunset were disturbed that the increased traffic-flow through Sunset would bring noise at all hours of the day and night.

Generally, the people heard were not concerned with making money on Sunset Center. Mrs. von Meier enlightened them that each year $95,000 in taxes were spent for culture at Sunset.

Of course, everyone was not opposed to the idea of re-zoning. Captain Frank Falge encouraged the people to attend the Cultural Commission meetings so they might see how careful the commission is about letting commercialism creep into Sunset Center.

Cole Weston appeared to list the cultural tenants at Sunset. They are: Friends of Photography, Bach Festival office, Community Theatre office, Monterey County Symphony office, Von Ruhs Art Gallery, Dance Arts Association, Sculptor Guild, Mary Burr Dance Studio, a library branch, Girl Scouts meeting room, adult school classes, and Edlund-Weel Gallery. "I'm trying to proceed just as you want," Cole added.

After all was heard and considered, the commission pointed out that everything contained in the ordinance for re-zoning was representative of what the audience had to say. As a result, the ordinance passed through the Planning Commission and now goes to the City Council for approval, at which time more public hearings will be scheduled.

MOVIE REVIEW

MADMOISELLE the story of a simple village school mistress of tempestuous passions with all the instincts of a black widow spider which destroys its mate when the love season is over.

ROUGH NIGHT IN JERICHO, Martin portrays a law man turned town boss who stops at nothing, even murder, to enforce his despotism.

THE TRIP, Peter Fonda stars as a young man escaping personal problems through the use of hallucinatory drugs.

CASINO ROYALE, overblown, silly, spy spoof, betting on spectacle rather than sense and generally squandering assets.

LONG DUEL, set in India during the 20's is the struggle between a rebel chief and the sympathetic English Officer assigned to capture him.

TARZAN AND THE GREAT RIVER. A new Tarzan has left the jungles of Africa for South America. He is asked to put an end to the activities of an evil tribal chief in the depths of the Amazon country.

TO SIR, WITH LOVE reminds you of what really warm good movies are like. It is a beautiful movie and perfect from top to bottom with lot of mod action.

POINT BLANK, a powerful suspense drama was shot at Alcatraz last spring. Lee Marvin plays a man double-crossed by his wife and business partner.

SAND PEBBLES, an adventure romance set in China prior to World War II.

REFLECTIONS IN A GOLDEN EYE. Strange passions tear at Marlon Brando and Elizabeth Taylor as a couple in conflict in a peacetime army post. Produced by Ray Stark from Carson McCuller's explosive novel.

City Representatives Return Home From Meeting

After three days at the League of California Cities conference held in San Francisco last week, the City Councilmen, City Attorney and City Clerk returned home to report that the conference was successful and quite informative.

Many of the perplexing problems now facing the City should be solved in short order as a result of the conference; such as a better method of handling the "illegal motels" and working out the weak points in the proposed Cable TV ordinance. Attorney William Burleigh made this point: "We got enough information on the TV Cable system alone to pay for the trip up there."

The attorney said that he will submit a formal presentation to the City Council at its next meeting (November 8) that will finally conclude the pressing question surrounding the motels in the R-1 District.

Burleigh also said that it was pointed out at the conference that the 2% of the gross receipts the City will receive from the Cable Company, which is covered in the proposed ordinance, was "unreasonably low" and that the standard of operation can be more restrictive. Under our proposed Cable TV ordinance the cable company can meet present requirements and STILL produce a poor picture.

"We have learned much about how to avoid litigation," Burleigh said, "which will save the city an awful lot of money."

Both the Clerk and the Attorney agreed that the most important thing obtained from the meeting was "How to reduce costs . . . produce income . . . and increase efficiency."

All subjects covered during the three days will be printed and shipped to the City Hall for further review. Also the League will send prepared model ordinances on various subjects that will aid in simplifying procedures.

City Clerk Hugh Bayless shed more light on further possibilities of saving money. He said that the "Umbrella Liability Insurance," in which several cities participate in one policy, would save us money on paying premiums. Bayless said that one great benefit gained from the conference was that "we had the opportunity to meet with other officials to talk about mutual problems."

One of two royal dress makers from London, England, Mr. Harly Amies visited Roos/Atkins in Monterey recently to promote his new line of men's clothing which is manufactured by his own company on Savile Row in London, the home of grand tailoring. Mr. Amies, who just completed a show in Cologne, Germany, expressed his philosophy in men's fashion as being "toward the elegant, longer jacket with deep vents, away from the boxy look . . . pants narrow and slightly flaired at the bottom, shaped to give a more masculine look." All his designs will be carried by Roos/Atkins, and will be priced at a moderate $100. He said, "Good design shouldn't be confined to the rich." Amies stressed, "We don't want to make the American into a copy-cat little Britisher . . . we want to make a bigger, better, more vital American."

Young Artists' Auditions

All young musicians are invited to participate in this year's Young Artists' Auditions sponsored by the Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula Inc. They will be held in the Monterey Peninsula College music building on Sunday, November 19.

Robert Tarbox, pianist winner of the 1964 competition, received a four-year scholarship to the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music and is studying for a degree in performance with Johanna Harris. He is the son of Mrs. Doris Tarbox, former Carmel resident.

Robert Luis Ramos, the 1965 winner, Carmel High School senior, is both a classical and popular pianist. His four-piece band, "The 37 Science," played recently for the teen dance at the Mission Fiesta. It has been booked all over the state. His parents are Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. L. Ramos.

In addition to cash prizes for all winners, the two first place winners, one pianist and one instrumentalist, will have the opportunity to play as guest soloists with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra at the Youth Concerts in January.

Applications may be obtained from the Monterey County Symphony office at Sunset Center and at Harnish Music Company in Carmel.

LINDOS . . . ISLE OF RHODES, GREECE, a lovely ruin to be seen in the Explorers Club movie "Greece and the Greek Isles" which will be presented in the Sunset Center Theatre November 2, at 8:15 p.m. Colonel John D. No Extras To Buy Touring cars have gone up a bit in price since 1916, and so has everything else, but there are still NO EXTRAS TO BUY when you purchase one of these homes. In fact, you won't even have to dust before you move in!

ON SANTA LUCIA, with a breath-taking view of Pt. Lobos, that attractive corner you've noticed so often in passing—the handsome rustic home with shake roof and its fabulous flowers all year 'round. One of its most interesting features is the step-up-to living room, such a gracious size, so beautifully paneled and beamed, with such a great fireplace—and, of course, The View. Priced at just $67,500, and so nicely located in Carmel's "banana belt".

OFF PERRY NEWBERRY (that lovely little street) here's that difficult-to-find home with a very large beam ceilinged living room and both bedrooms spacious, airy and sunny, with first-class baths. You'll also like the big, informal kitchen and all the wonderful closet space. Built only about 11 years ago for a Very Particular present owner (who, incidentally, is a bridge player par excellence, which is one reason for the huge living room) and the price is only $42,500.

ON FLANDERS PLACE, that beautiful cul-de-sac in Carmel Hills, here is the perfect retirement home for mountain watchers, deck sitters, and people who just like their views as panoramic as possible. Nothing whatever to do to this beautifully landscaped and maintained home but move right in and begin enjoying it. Den plus two bright bedrooms, long living room with impeccable carpeting, draperies, and everywhere luxurious custom touches to delight you. The $59,500 price will delight you, too.

And remember: NO EXTRAS TO BUY!

Incidentally . . .

We have known for years, Carmel surrounds itself with creative talents, no matter how young. Recently Carmel High School Michael Burz, 14, won the regional competition in an aero-space vehicle design contest and journeyed to San Diego Saturday to enter State competition. His entry is an ion-powered space exploration vehicle model of his own design, and is the only model selected from Northern California.

Speaking of space, down the Valley construction has begun on the new earth station for satellite communications which will serve as a major West Coast link for the expanding global system of commercial space communications. This is NOT a government project . . . it's strictly commercial. Forty persons, mainly engineers, will man the station. The name . . . let's just call it by their initials COMSAT.

The Monterey Peninsula Jaycettes have chosen "Mystic Fashions" as their theme for their first fashion show which will feature fashions from Gretchen's in Monterey. The luncheon-fashion show will be held this Saturday. For information call Mrs. Donald Robinson at 624-7897.

The Carmel Rotary Club has approved the donation of a room at Community Hospital for a total of $6500. By the way, Rotarians are also planning their yearly stag barbecue at Saddle Mountain for November 1.

Quail hunters in Monterey should have good shooting this year (if you are so inclined) as a result of good hatches which have been observed in the area. Limit is 10 per day.

For you "duffers" who play the Del Monte Golf Course behind the Mark Thomas Inn, you'll like to know that the 18th hole will soon become the lobby of the Hyatt House to be built on the existing last hole of the course. Present at the ground breaking ceremonies was Samuel F. B. Morse, and Tim Michaud, of Del Monte Properties, as well as the President of Hyatt House Corporation. Provisions for the replacement of the 18th hole has been made and the green is in good shape.

Dean Witter & Co. of Monterey is in its beginning few days of a three-week lecture course in investment fundamentals. It's a free course designed for the newcomer to investing and will include stock market language, investment program objectives, function of securities market and sound investment practices. Call Dean Witter for reservations in this full course.

Peace Corps Newlyweds

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick C. Dowling of Carmel are still awaiting word from their daughter Gail who was married in June to John Givens, of their permanent two-year Peace Corps assignment in Korea. The young couple will be teaching English to Korean children. Gail used to be director of children's plays at the Forest Theater.

The Dowlings spent the remainder of the summer in England visiting relatives where they found the weather unexpectedly mild and pleasant.

World Traveler

Elizabeth Buckley, who spent May and June in the Orient, is off to Australia by way of New Zealand, Tahiti, Caledonia and some other places. She has not been there for 38 years, and she is interested in how it may have changed.

She has recently had a house guest, Tom Grimm, a professional photographer for National Geographic, with whom she visited Russia last year. On Tuesday evening, at her home, he showed some of his slides to a group of Carmel friends.

World Peace Conferences Attended by Baha'is

Many Baha'i members from this area are attending peace conferences all over the globe.

Laura Smithson of Carmel, former owner of the Artists Guild Gallery on Monte Verde Street in Carmel, will be in Frankfurt, Germany, after completing a two month Baha'i teaching tour through Iceland, Norway, Denmark and other European countries.

Dawn Edwards Polprasid and her daughter April Edwards, formerly of Carmel, will represent this area in New Delhi, before going on to Bangkok, where Dawn will rejoin her husband, Sanja Polprasid, a former teacher of the Thai language at the Defense Language Institute. April Edwards will return to her Bangkok TV program which she has had since June.

Loava Helen Carter, owner of the Helen Carter Shop in Carmel, will visit the Baha'i center in Africa. She will help the African Friends make final preparations for their Conference. She will then travel to Sydney.

Mrs. Nell Applegate and Norbert Kammer recently flew to Panama City where a Baha'i Conference is being attended by representatives from 33 countries and islands in the Americas, and where the first Baha'i church in Latin America is being erected.

Arthur and Joyce Dahl of Pebble Beach and their sons, Keith, Arthur Jr., Roger, and Gregory are representing Carmel in Wilmette, Illinois, the national headquarters of Baha'i Worship. They are joined by Mrs. Irene Mezger and others from the Peninsula.

The six conferences were called to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the founder who believed in the maturity of the human race, in the interdependence of all peoples, in the possibility of peace in a world disarmed except for a world peace force, in an international tribunal to settle disputes with the power to enforce its decisions, and an elected world parliament.

Aero-space Vehicle Design Winner

Michael Burz, Carmel High School sophomore, recently won the regional competition in aero-space vehicle design sponsored by the California State Air Force Association, a civilian group. His entry was an ion-powered space exploration vehicle model accompanied by a 500 word essay.

Michael then went on to win a first prize $50 bond and plaque at the San Diego state convention which he and his mother, Mrs. A. Burz, attended. Earl House of Carmel, Monterey chapter delegate also attended.

Mrs. Burz was, of course, pleased and happy "to have my dreamer recognized."

Tennis Tournament

The week end of Saturday and Sunday, October 28 and 29, will be a busy one at Pebble Beach. The Inter-Club Tennis Tournament for the Social Spectator trophy donated by its New York publisher, Alan Howard, will take place.

Saturday night following a cocktail party at Del Monte Lodge, contestants will join "The Danse Macabre" in appropriate costumes and dance to the music of Walt Tolleson's orchestra. There'll also be a pie throwing alley, and a "danse spectacle" with special illuminations and Halloween decorations.

Cheese fondue will be served at midnight.

The Beach and Tennis Club, Pebble Beach, hosts for the event, will be represented by Miss Patsy Farish, just home from New York and Expo 67 to play, Mrs. Blair McDonald, Ray Ramsey, Yvan Nopert, Lee Hölley, and Kent Olsen.

Other clubs in the contest are the Menlo Circus Club, the Berkeley Tennis Club, the Peninsula Club, the Orinda Country Club, and the Olympic Club. Early reservations are recommended.

City Planner Honored

George C. Bestor, Carmel civil engineer, who has distinguished himself in city planning, was honored last week by the California Council of Civil Engineers at a special dinner attended by 300 engineers.

In the area of city planning, Mr. Bestor is best known for his comprehensive bibliography on planning literature. It has become a basic guide, used by engineers and planners throughout the U.S. and many foreign countries. He has pioneered in the promotion of underground installation of utilities as a means of enhancing the appearance of residential subdivisions. His book on that was published by the Urban Land Institute in Washington, D.C.

November Wedding

Congratulations are in order for Frederick Friden Carroll, son of Mrs. Frank Thacker of Carmel, whose approaching marriage to Marilyn Mae Monin of Pacifica will take place November 4. Frederick was a 1963 graduate of Carmel High School. In the meantime he has attended the University of Maryland and San Mateo College. He is presently employed by Air California in San Mateo.

Carmel Art Modes

By Louise Cook

Everybody, no matter what the age, got into the act at the Fine Arts Festival at the Monterey Fair Grounds.

Artists in Action At Festival

The Fairgrounds was an exciting place to be last weekend during the Fine Arts and Crafts Festival. There were demonstrations of fine jewelry and silver smithing, sculpture and even batik as a fine art. Visitors were allowed to participate in pottery making. The Monterey County Youth Science Center provided live models such as a pony, weasel, rabbit, owl, for children to paint.

Both the juried art exhibitions and the special room devoted to the permanent works owned by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art were hung by Stephen Brown, Curator, and his wife.

"End of Day" is a timeless and mood provoking beach scene painted by Carmel Artist Helen Dooley. A visit to her gallery is very rewarding because of the lively variety of works created by this artist. Her water colors are painted from life and are largely representative. On the other hand, Helen Dooley works from imagination in oils with mere suggestions of flowers, trees, people and buildings painted in pure colors from a simple palette. Mrs. Dooley has been a member of the Carmel Art Association for 20 years. She has taught art in several universities and has won many awards. Just last week we reported the substantial prize she won at the Monterey Peninsula Art Museum. Her "Boat Patterns" won honorable mention at the Fine Arts and Crafts Festival held at the Monterey County Fair Grounds last week end.

Here again both the sculpture and the paintings were exciting, different, highly professional. Artists from all over the central coast region were entered, from as far north as San Francisco and Mill Valley, and as far south as Fresno, Elwood Graham, Pebble Beach, won a prize for his watercolor, "Mexican Village." Joe Ataide, Rusty Churchill, Lillian Frisbie, and S. C. Yuan showed paintings as well as Cyril Brown, Jr. of Big Sur, and Margaret Gianascol of Pebble Beach. Louise Ryan of Carmel was shown in the sculpture division and Avis Ballard exhibited a picture done in enamel. William Gorham, Carmel sculptor, exhibited a sterling silver pendant, and Kay Clark a wood inlay wall clock. Stephen James won a special photography award, and Loren Christianson, Roger Premier, and Regina Hicks exhibited some prints.

The sculpture of Gordon Newell, who lost all his works in the recent Cannery Row fire, was beautifully exhibited in the landscaped patio beside a pool. All works were loaned by collectors.

Laky Show

Keith Lindberg who is being presented in a one man show at Laky Galleries, Ltd. is a young artist who is achieving success in his twenties. He has developed a bold, individual style and his use of color is uninhibited, sometimes coming purely out of the tube. His economy of brush strokes results in a clean and uncontrived canvas.

The show is a great success and we are told that over 50% of Mr. Lindberg's paintings in this show have already been sold. Keith Lindberg has lived in Carmel for about five years, painting and teaching art. He is a member of the board of the Carmel Art Association.

Clever Windows

Pat Leidig who puts together some of the delightful window displays for William Ober's home furnishings shop near the Post Office, flew home to Adrian, Michigan for short visit with her family last week.

Excerpts From the Diary of a WW I Ace

Colonel Paul S. Winslow, who now resides in Pebble Beach with his wife Ruth, and who was a vice president with Del Monte Properties before his recent retirement, recounts the exciting ventures experienced during World War I. In this portion of his diary, Colonel Winslow was flying an SE-5, similar to the one pictured here. It was after a brief 3-week training period that Colonel Winslow encountered his first combat in the air. It was on his first patrol on June 30, 1918. The following is taken from his diary.

June 30, 1918

Yesterday, after tea, operation orders came around stating that a close offensive patrol was to leave the ground at 7:10 p.m., consisting of one flight. "A" flight, my flight, was picked, and I was about to start on my first patrol.

I was a little nervous the hours before, but smoked a cigarette and saw to the loading of my guns in comparative calm. At 7:05 we taxied out into position, led by Bill Boger, my flight commander, with Sambo Irwin on his left and I on his right, with Hazen and Tommy Herbert back of us. At 7:10 Bill took off, and we followed in perfect formation, climbing toward the west. At 5,000 feet we crossed the lines, and headed north just on the edge of Hunland. At 10,000 feet we swung due east, still climbing. At 15,000 we leveled off and began dodging

"Archie," who was uncomfortably close doing flat skidding turns, putting on no bank, so our wings wouldn't flash on the ground. For about 10 minutes he was pretty good, then petered out and bothered us no more.

Suddenly Sambo Irwin, next to me, started to climb, and Hazen took his place—Sambo getting up to 18,000. Then it was I saw 5 pink Hun Pfaltz Scouts above us, but out of range. I knew Bill had seen them, for he commenced to climb into the sun, so that they couldn't see us without being blinded. At 16,500, and at 8:30 sharp, Sambo came shooting through the formation with a Hun on his tail whom he had led there on purpose, and before I knew it bullets were shooting all around us, long gray streaks denoting tracers. It was a dog fight—five Huns and five of us. I kept my eye on Bill and he suddenly pulled right up on his tail and fired a long burst. Just in front of me appeared a pink Hun wobbling backward and forward. I got him in my sights, and pressed both levers, the tracers going all through his machine. Bill, however, had killed the pilot before I started to shoot, so

I pulled out of my dive, looked around and there were two pink Huns converging on my tail, firing wildly. I don't know what I did, but I think I half-rolled on my back, for those two Huns went diving past my tail and then on east. Just as I turned a mass of flames shot by me with just the black cross visible, and I mentally noted two.

An SE-5 of the 56th Squadron in 1918—similar to the aircraft which Colonel Winslow flew in the account of his first combat mission as told to us here.

Bill had shot him down also, I found out later.

Just as suddenly as it began, it ended, and the sky was empty once more of machines. I saw one S.E. in front of me with a big 4 on it and knew it was Sambo. He fired a red light and I closed in to him. Looking around, I saw we were about 10 miles into Hunland, and a huge thundercloud coming out of the west. The top of the cloud was at about 15,000, so we were well above. The sun had gone down and there was only a red glow in lowed. Into the cloud we went. Sambo wiggled his wings and dove—and I followed at 180 mph, with just enough engine to keep the contact, and I dared not move out of my course for lack of petrol. My speed was the only thing that saved me. It was veritable Hell. Finally, I crossed the line and saw a landmark directing me home, and everything was quiet save for the roar of the engine, and the still greater roar in my head, for a 12,000 foot dive at 200 mph is terrific. Then my service tank ran dry and I switched to the emergency, and putting the nose down, headed for where I thought the aerodrome was. It was then 9:15 and pitch dark, the only darker thing being the patches of woods below. Then I saw a white Very's light shoot up and then another, and I knew that I was nearly home. As I landed my tank emptied.

WHAT'S DOING?

It's not very surprising that with more than 114,000 coin phones in California, that once in a while one of them will go haywire and keep your dime when it shouldn't. And if this happens to you, all you have to do is dial the Operator from another phone and tell her what happened. She'll see that a refund is mailed to you, or if you wish, complete another call for you.

And, we'll appreciate it if you'll give the Operator the number of the phone that kept your dime so we can check to see if it needs to be repaired.

Peninsula Golfers:

The 1967 Hole-in-One Contest sponsored by the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce will be held October 27-29 at the Pacific Grove Municipal Golf Course.

Golfers from throughout the Monterey Peninsula are invited to compete for awards including a Grand Prize trip for two to Victoria British Columbia.

According to the way I heard it, a man went down to a bookstore to get a long-anticipated book that had just arrived and found people were actually standing in line for their copies. Then he got a bright idea. He walked out to the sidewalk and into a telephone booth in front of the store. He dialed the mail order section of the store and requested his book. When the clerk asked for the name and address, he said, "Don't bother sending it... just bring it to me out in front of the store!" Buying a book or whatever your shopping needs, I'm sure you'll find shopping by phone is time-saving and more convenient, and don't forget the handy Yellow Pages.

Greek Lamb, Americanized

"Souper a la grecque"

The Greeks have words of their own, and as we don't know a word of it, we're translating our French title into "Grecian Supper!" just to get into a continental frame of mind for the third Explorarama showing at Sunset Auditorium on November 2 when "Greece and the Greek Isles" will be enjoyed.

Before venturing into the savory realm of Greek cuisine, let's picture a patron of a French restaurant advising the chef on how to prepare his meal! Unthinkable? Not to a Greek. He considers it his perfect right to direct the culinary activities in his favorite taverna. Regardless of social, political or economic status all Greeks fancy themselves gourmet cooks. Even though we may not put ourselves into this category, let's cook up a quick pre-cinema supper a la grecque. If our fickle weather still permits, supper al fresco would be perfect even without a vine-sheltered arbor. Grecian style.

Milk-fed young lamb now on local markets (and surprisingly inexpensive) is tender and ideal for outdoor cookery. How charcoaling enhances the sweet flavor of any meat! But in case of fog (who knows by Nov. 2nd)? use your kitchen broiler and sprinkle liquid smoke onto the lamb. Either way, as the Grecian kebabs cook, the aroma sends out an irresistible invitation. Eggplant and tomatoes with green pepper chunks and small onions are threaded onto extra long skewers. In Greece, where pineapple is a rare luxury, it is combined with sweet pickles as an epicurian delight. Here we can take our choice or use all of these easily available gourmet items at one time.

Greek Lamb Kebabs, Americanized

Half a cup sweet pickle liquid; 1/2 cup, each, catsup and water; 6 whole cloves; 1 bay leaf; 1 tsp. instant minced onion flakes; 1 tsp. salt; 1/2 tsp. peppercorns; 2 lbs. cubed young lamb, about 1 1/2 inches; 1 medium eggplant, cut in 1/2 inch slices, unpeeled; 12 sweet gherkins; 1 medium fresh pineapple, cut in wedges (peeled). Serves 6.

Combine pickle liquid, catsup, water and seasonings. Add lamb. Marinate several hours or overnight. Place lamb on skewers and broil 5 to 6 inches from source of heat, or cook on outdoor grill, 10 to 12 minutes per side, brushing frequently with marinade. Place pickles and pineapple on skewers and grill 5 minutes per side brushing often (with pastry brush or celery stalk containing much foliage) with marinade. At serving each lucky supper-eater pushes the contents off his "sword" onto brown rice . . . use either the packaged natural brown rice or cook white rice in canned bouillon diluted according to directions.

Every Greek Meal finishes with fruit, and cheese. In season, fresh fruit is used, otherwise compotes are made of dried fruits and yoghurt. It is passed to pour over the dessert. Its nice and easy. On special occasions sugary, honey-rich many layered pastries are expected, for Greeks love sweets. The Continental Market at the Monterey Wharf has a supply, so don't attempt to bake your own unless you want to spend hours in the kitchen! Who does? Kali Orexi!

Actress at San Jose State

Miss Susan Mason, daughter of Mrs. Neta M. Bailey of Carmel is playing the lead in Look Homeward Angel at San Jose State College. The play opens October 20 and will be given also on October 21, 25, 26, 27, and 28.

More than half of all passenger car occupants are now provided with seat belts . . . BUT they are using those belts only about half the time. Even this limited use, however, saved about 2,000 lives in 1966.

Rudolph's Celebrates 61st Year of Business

"Now we're 61 and still thinking young" . . . says Lou Rudolph, who, with his brother Dave, are the third generation of Rudolphs to head the family business at Mariposa Hall, the historic landmark at 801 Lighthouse Avenue, Monterey.

This is "Rudolph's Revisited Week" in which the public is invited to an Open House at Rudolph's, to celebrate their 61st anniversary, (1906-1967), and the completion of their expansion and remodeling program. This will give everyone a chance to see the old-new Williamsburg-style renovation of the exterior and the newly expanded facilities throughout, which include larger carpet and drapery departments, new offices and warehouse building, an extended Garden Patio for the display of indoor/outdoor furniture, as well as a new parking area and rear entrance at the back of the building. However, all the remodeling and extending have only served to enhance the Colonial charm of the old Mariposa Hall, which dates back to 1891, when it was built as a community social center. As far as can be determined, Rudolph's has been in business at the same location longer than any other on the Peninsula.

At first, Rudolph's sold new and used furniture, antiques, hardware and kitchenware. Later the emphasis shifted to fine furniture, carpeting and drapery fabrics. Rudolph's is known now as a leading interior design studio for both residential and commercial clients.

To commemorate their 61st birthday celebration,

Rudolph's . . . expanding yet maintaining the charm and dignity of Colonial styling.

Rudolph's have had printed a special brochure, which traces the tradition with rare old photographs of Monterey, Mariposa Hall and Rudolph's. These photos are from the private collections of Robert McKeever and Ray Rudolph. On display too, will be Rudolph's unusual collection of artifacts and historical curios, including the whaler's flensing knife and curious bottles found recently during the new construction at the rear of Mariposa Hall.

Refreshments will be served, and everyone is welcome.

Congratulations:

THEY'RE BOTH YOUNG . . . The girl on the right has a home . . . the one on the left doesn't, but will soon she hopes. After the "Auction of Heirlooms and Treasures" on October 28 at Sunset Center sponsored by the SPCA, all the animals at the SPCA animal shelter on David Street in Pacific Grove will have a better temporary home. The money gained from this auction will go to provide shelters and other buildings to be constructed on five and a half acres of donated land on the Salinas-Monterey highway. So, plan to help these orphaned animals get a better home by attending the auction at Sunset Center, October 28. (Our models are (L-R) "Cricket" of the SPCA shelter and Nicole Forville, daughter of Paul D. Forville associated with the Bank of America.)

From A Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg, City Librarian

After choosing a group of books for this piece it came to me that all of them were full of stress, being about the war and the draft and criminals and all such. Next time, all will be sweetness and light. But this time let's delve into the stressful side of life.

First, a book about the draft. There seem to be so many opinions about the draft, whether or not it is fair, or needed or honest. This new book is by an army officer, Colonel George Walton, who for some time was connected with the Selective Service System. The book is entitled Let's End The Draft Mess. He discusses the different policies used by different draft boards, the favoritism which exists everywhere, the student deferments, all the undesirable facets of the problem. This solution is to make all youths serve between the ages of 18 and 20, the first six months to be basic training, the last eighteen months to be served in the branch of the service-man's choice. It sounds workable.

Dr. Robert Cples is a child psychologist at Harvard University. He made an exhaustive study of the fight for integration in the South, and published his findings in the book Children of Crisis, a Study of Courage and Fear. The title has an erudite sound, but the book is as readable as a novel and more interesting.

A true western is Iron Men by C. H. Mc Kennan. The "Iron Men" of the old west were the U. S. Deputy Marshalls of that day, a day of casual murder and open plunder. The facts in this book are all true, and the names have not been changed to protect the innocent.

Ten Vietnamese is by Susan Sheehan, who is the wife of a New York Times correspondent stationed in Saigon. Mrs. Sheehan writes for the New Yorker. Her book is just what the title indicates, the stories of ten different Vietnamese people who are part of the 95% of the population who never talk to a reporter and are never counted as being of any importance in the country or the war. From their life stories we may learn of the real Vietnam and its people. They are a peasant, a landlord, a refugee, a politician, an orphan, a soldier and so on.

Earl Warren, a Political Biography was written by Leo Katcher of Los Angeles, who is a former editor of the New York Post. This is the Warren of politics. Among other things it traces and discusses the decision to place all alien Japanese people in California in internment camps during the war. The author says, "Earl Warren acted as he did in those years because he did not know any better. What few realized was how soon Earl Warren would not only know better, but would know more." For Californians, this is an important book.

An interesting book for picking up and putting down soon is A Pictorial History of the World's Great Trials by Brandt Aymar. Beginning with the trial of Socrates and ending with that of Adolf Eichmann, there are the stories of thirty one important trials, with pictures and a short text. This sort of book is not for sustained reading, but it is interesting and extremely informative.

As we promised, the next piece will be about lighter more amusing books, if we can find any such in this world of war, high taxes, and youth in revolt.

The Complete Gardener

a regular diet of information having to do with plants

Happiness to the Complete Gardener is a big pile of compost that has been brewing all winter long. It is not surprising that our mail finds an impassioned plea from the sands of Marina to "please give us your recipe for composting."

To the uninitiated, composting is the process of converting garden and household garbage into useful and beneficial humus. This material can then be incorporated with soil to give it life, and in the case of sand; moisture-holding ability. A far-off corner of your back lot is a good location. The general plan is to layer your organic cast-offs (non-woody plant material, grass clippings, and kitchen garbage) with your own soil. On each layer or organics sprinkle fertilizer that is high in nitrogen. Cover with a layer of soil and wet down with water.

Composting can also be accomplished in a shallow hole which has been lined with concrete or polyfilm to prevent the leaching of valuable plant foods. With this method no soil is added. Use grass clippings, weeds, kitchen refuse and fallen leaves. Add a sprinkling of hoof and horn meal occasionally and keep moist. Stir it thoroughly twice, about three months apart, and you'll be rewarded with a supply of rich humus next spring.

We have been asked about the best procedure for growing bulb plants in containers. Tulips, daffodils, Dutch iris and other spring bloomers can be colorful additions indoors or on the patio. Clay pots are the most popular for this purpose. The planting medium should be spongelike to give a balanced distribution of air and moisture. You can make your own mixture with one-third good garden soil, one-third peat moss, and one-third surface. Or your garden supply shop can provide a fortified potting soil — one that is dense and heavy. Do not use a commercial "planting mix." Fill your pots half full, firming the material well. Sprinkle a light layer of bulb food on this and add more potting soil until the pots are two-thirds full. Now water the pots just enough to moisten all of the soil. It should be mentioned here that clay pots are quite thirsty and it is well to soak them overnight before planting. And remember to place a piece of broken pot over the hole in the bottom to prevent the loss of potting soil. When 8-inch pots are used three bulbs can now be set in place and covered with more potting soil, allowing just the tips to peek through. Firm the soil again and give the pots another watering. From now on your only responsibility is to keep the pots from drying out.

REPORTS FROM RLS

By Chandler Meloy

Many Music Programs Coming

MUSIC: A strong music program is developing this year as both faculty and students are joining in programs and concerts for public shows and on-campus enjoyment.

The Vespers program on Sunday evening (at 6:30 pm) is always open to the public, and in addition to speakers of note, it includes a regular music program with the Choir, and frequently soloists. Mr. Dyke Garrison, new to the campus this year, is sponsoring the Glee Club, with regular weekly performances planned on Sunday evening, plus a program for Parents Day on November 11th.

A small faculty-student instrumental group under the direction of Music Director Robert Peterson has been performing, with their latest presentation having Mrs. Don Gordan on cello, Senior Robert Howard at the Harpsichord and Peterson on the organ. Special arrangements by Bob Peterson of Bach's lesser known works were highly received two weeks ago for the evening vespers. A folk music group is also forming and has been invited to play in Carmel Valley in November.

Student and faculty Groups are available to play for service organizations, and requests should be directed to Robert Peterson at the school.

ATHELETICS: The cross country team has chalked up two more wins as they defeated San Rafael Military by 17 to 38, followed by a strong win against Menlo Prep with a 17-45 score. The JV's also won both matches taking their sixth straight victory of the year. The solid 1-2-3 running of Mark Stevenson, Don Hicok and Mark Farber has given the team it's most balanced running in many years. A surprise in the varsity is Tom Brown who shows improvement each week, with little Joe Todd and Bob Bardin sharing in point-making. In the JV's, Mike Bohman has come on strong, with solid performances each week from Art Lara and John Todd, as well as ten more boys in the reserves.

Water Polo is starting to jell as the Varsity won it's second victory defeating Overfelt of San Jose by 8-7. The JV's won their third straight by 16-10 behind the 10 goal scoring of David Inks. Varsity play was highlighted by Jim Booth with four goals.

A great success story high above Carmel Valley?

The new adult residential community Del Mesa Carmel is a "best-seller". It was quietly opened to the public just a few months ago. A surprising number of residences were sold within weeks. Inquiries came from as far away as New York and Boston. Only one advertisement appeared in local newspapers. But a mailing list of several hundred had been built-up from casual callers who had seen our "meadow in the sky" and our plans. Now even on days when the weather-man turns the other way, people take the beautiful, winding driveway up to the top to see if we have what they've heard we have. We have . . . so they're still coming!

The reasons are simple: an inspiring location 400 feet above Carmel Valley, fresh, imaginative planning and design, the best of everything in carpeting, fixtures, closet space, and all modern housekeeping facilities. Plus views of valley, mountains and the sea which we believe are unmatched in an adult residential community where constant growth and bigger-and-better urbanization are not only unwanted, but impossible. There's only so much room on a mountain-top!

But come and meet us, talk with us, stand where our views are truly inspiring, get the fresh, exciting "feel" of the place. See for yourself! If you'd like a beautiful color brochure before you make the trip, write to: Don McLean, P.O. Box 3688 P, Carmel California 93921, or telephone (408) 624-2732 (Carmel, Calif.)

BEWILDERED AND DISCOURAGED BY CARMEL PROPERTY PRICES? SIMPLY UNABLE TO FIND A HOUSE OF REAL VALUE FOR LESS THAN $30,000?

PLEASE DON'T GIVE UP. JUST BROADEN YOUR SCOPE. Carmel isn't the only nice place to live on the Monterey Peninsula even though about seven thousand folks think so. But, several million have the same idea about Los Angeles and New York.

Consider Pacific Grove, for example, which happens to be located on the same Ocean that attracted you to Carmel. A veritable Persian carpet instead of cypress trees borders the path that winds along the white sand beach. Nice homes and nice people, too. And the loveliest display of poinsettias on the entire Peninsula provides nature's own Christmas decorations.

Let us show you a very special house, one that was built by the present owners and has been tenderly cherished for twelve years. Now, these two sisters are making other plans and hope that their spacious two-bedroom home (each with bath), with a family dining room and central heat will be a place of serene comfort for the next occupants.

Listed at $26,750. (Far below the price of similar property in Carmel.) Located in a pleasant residential area, on a level lot with enough grass and flowers to give it the feeling of a real home. If you are from the East or the Mid-West you will appreciate this and your search for a reasonably priced home in California will have a happy ending.

Monterey County Symphony Review

by John Upton

Most of us who were on hand Tuesday evening at Sunset auditorium had been awaiting the Monterey County Symphony's first concert of the 1967-8 season with eagerness and curiosity. This was to be its first performance under the tutelage of conductor Jan deJong, and we had no idea what to expect. Would this dedicated consort shoot to unprecedented heights of artistry and precision, or would the violas still have a tendency to waver and the brasses to stumble?

As it turned out, the violas and the brasses were pretty good; but we cannot honestly say that the orchestra as a whole has undergone any miraculous transformation. Intonation, especially in the violin section, was somewhat less than perfect, and we detected an old, familiar raggedness in the woodwinds.

This was rather surprising, in view of the fact that most of the program consisted of relatively easy music. Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" makes no great demands on the performers, nor does Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet" Overture. Beethoven's symphonies are, of course, never child's play; but No. 6 (the "Pastoral") is far less difficult than the Ninth, for example, which the orchestra chose to perform (perhaps unwisely) last season.

Alberto Ginastera's "Variaciones Concertantes" was the exception: it is, in places, downright fiendish. Oddly enough, this constantly surprising piece by the contemporary Argentinean came off quite well, and seemed to me to be the best thing of the evening. Ginastera is nothing if not eclectic: the "Variations" open in the style of Ravel, proceed to alternately menacing and playful statements in the manner of Shostakovich, and come to a roaring climax that might have been written by Berlioz. Ginastera is a master of tonal color, particularly in the strings, and of spiny shrieks and ominous mutterings. It is an exciting and demanding work, which few of us had heard before. It seemed to be a good choice for Tuesday's concert, and deJong and his musicians acquitted themselves very well indeed.

The Wagner I found rather dull. It is amusing to recall that this music created a furor in 1867, eliciting such adjectives as "shocking" and "chaotic." Now it seems quite mild, and perhaps a little pompous. Mr. deJong did not make as much of it as he might have, it seemed to me. This is in some ways a kind of musical hysteria, and his matter-of-fact reading made it sound saner than it is.

The Beethoven Sixth is not, as Dr. Charles Harlan points out in his unfailingly readable program notes, merely a musical description of "a day in the country," with a thunderstorm and peasants dancing, although this is what we were taught in "music appreciation." It is a formal and intricate piece of composition, full of surprises and invention. Compared to Wagner's soaring repetitions, its imaginative-ness seems limitless. Conductor deJong's reading was rather dry, I thought, so that there never seemed to be a sufficiently wide spectrum of dynamics. At the close of the final movement, for example, where Beethoven wrote three bars of pianis-simo followed by two fortissimo chords, the orchestra played the passage at nearly a steady mezzoforte. The work did not seem to close, but simply to stop.

There is not much to be said about Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet" that has not been said before. To call it "movie music" is not to denigrate Tchaikovsky but to deplore the imitations; none the less, for most of us over 25 it has lost its impact. The cellos sobbed beautifully, the violins swooped as though their hearts would break, and the French horn rhapsodized under the moon. Aside from the lack of dynamic shading referred to above, it was a creditable performance.

Mr. deJong conducts crisply and with considerable sensitivity, although, as I have said, rather dryly. This, surely, is a matter of taste, and he may well reach a greater rapport with his orchestra in the coming months. At the moment his greatest problems seem to be shaky intonation in the strings and untidy phrasing.

The orchestra's next concert will be in December, when we shall again look for that miraculous transformation.

Drug Policies Worked Over by School Board

Three members of the Carmel School Board worked on the wording of a positive statement concerning the use, possession and supplying of illegal drugs by students so that they would know exactly what to expect.

Dr. Harry Bullard pleaded for a very strong drug policy.

Dr. Dan Yurkovitch announced that there would be a stop light on Highway One at Rio Road on January 1, 1968. One third of the costs will be paid by the county, the remainder by the state.

The board approved a request by 12 teachers that membership dues for the Monterey Bay Federation of Teachers (A.F.T.) be withheld from their salaries.

Approval of an application for $60,000 Title II, ESEA funds for library books to bring the Middle School Library up to exemplary status was approved.

Annexation of High School
The annexation of the High School to Carmel requested by Supt. Dr. Harris A. Taylor at the last school board meeting, could be accomplished very easily by appropriating the three blocks of Ocean Avenue roadway between the city limits and the school since the distance is not over half a mile, according to Councilman Gunnar Norberg.

This would result in better police protection, and the whole area contiguous to the high school might be opened up for annexation, he said. The high school and all the other schools in the area are already covered for fire protection by the Carmel Fire Department.

PADRES WALLOP PALMA
The Carmel Padres came through with a surprise victory last week with a 26-7 win over Palma.

On Saturday, at 8:30 p.m., the Academy of Music Auxiliary of Seaside will present pianist, Leticia Abellar, at the Sunset Auditorium in Carmel. Her program will include works by Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, and Debussy.

Culture Costs $95,000 Yearly

It costs the taxpayers of Carmel $95,000 for culture!

This figure, which includes the hostelry tax totaling $31,000, was brought out at Monday night's meeting of the Carmel Cultural Commission when Commissioner Patricia Faul explained that the commission must first be clear on Sunset Policy before anything can be done to relieve some of the tax pressures on the people with fixed income.

Gunnar Norberg, acting as a private citizen, attended the meeting to reprimand the commission for not utilizing Herbert Heron's collection of "priceless photographs" in a museum at Sunset. He was informed that two rooms have already been set aside for such a museum.

Sunset Policy Highlights
The planning committee submitted a report on policies and programs. Highlights were: to keep the Center in a cultural atmosphere; encourage acceptable types of conferences and seminars; study the needs for improvement at Sunset; rent space to selected creative workshops; select traffic-generating facilities, such as a parking structure, post office, or library; admit a restaurant to provide food and drink during operating hours of the Center; have the city promote events, itself when no private producers are available; not schedule conflicting events; and produce an annual historical pageant.

Possible Kiosks
To improve traffic flow through Sunset Center, the committee on administration advanced the idea of using kiosks at two Ocean Avenue locations to promote attendance at Sunset Center.

Kiosks are used in France to attach posters to publicize city sponsored activities, and are a circular structure generally standing 12' high. Dr. James Gilman estimated a kiosk would cost $350 per unit. He added that it would be artistically compatible with the aims of the Center.

Library Move
The Commission agreed to send a letter to the Harrison Library inviting them to consider building on the South playground of Sunset Center rather than splitting its facilities into two locations as presently planned.

Weston Goes to Louisiana
Sunset Manager Cole Weston was given approval to travel to the Monroe, Louisiana, Civic Center to observe and study operations under the direction of promoter-manager William Lillyman.

Official Name
The Commission gave Sunset Center its official name after exploring several names such as Carmel Cultural Center, Carmel Center, Carmel Art Center, etc. It was decided that the name remain Sunset Center but to change the auditorium to Sunset Theatre.

Bishop Given Four Counties

The new Diocese of Monterey which includes the four counties of Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Benito and San Luis Obispo, was announced yesterday in the Vatican and Bishop Harry Anselm Clinch, pastor of Carmel Mission Basilica, and until yesterday auxiliary bishop of the Fresno-Monterey Diocese, was named first bishop of Monterey.

The city of Monterey will be the see (headquarters) city and San Carlos Church, known also as the Royal Presidio Chapel, will be the cathedral for the diocese. Population of the four-county area is 450,500 of which roughly one fourth are Catholics.

Green Lantern Sold

Mr. Harold Reliford of Ocean Avenue Realty has announced the sale of the 19 unit Green Lantern on the corner of 7th and Casanova. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Lackland of Fresno bought the motel from Mr. and Mrs. Warren Van Sickle for a price in excess of $200,000.

Mr. Lackland is the founder and former president of Valley-Ag, a chemical firm.

JAPANESE VISITOR

This Saturday, the Allman J. Cooks will be entertaining Japanese visitor Tamotsu Todaka and his escort-interpreter, Mr. Tamotsu Takase from the U. S. Department of State. Mr. Todaka is president of Bunka Senden-sha, an advertising agency for cultural publicity. In his city, Miyazaki, he is a City Councilman, V. P. of the Tourist Promotion Association, Director of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry, founder of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Rotary Club.

Repertory Musicians

The Repertory Musicians of San Francisco will be guests of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber Music Society on October 29 at 4, in the Canterbury Woods auditorium at 651 Sinex Avenue, Pacific Grove.

The program includes works by Beethoven, Imbrie, Britten and Beethoven.

The group is composed of Julia Haug Lee, flutist, whose brother Edward is famed as a trumpeter, Fran Schorr, violinist, Richard Fenn, cellist and Jane Hoffeld, pianist.

Two prizes of $100 are planned by the non-profit organization: one for a pianist, the other for a violinist, under the age of 25 to be selected by audition. The winners will appear on one of the Society's programs. Also, the Chamber Music Society tries to commission each year a small chamber work by a "composer in residence", also to be performed during the season.

Series and single concert tickets may be reserved by phoning Mrs. Purple at 624-6098. Reduced prices for students or service men.

Mr. Gilbert Boyer, whose Debussy Piano-Lecture Series is being concluded at MPC on October 31, is founder and president of the society.
